Women Democrats from Across the State Invited to Take Part; 3rd in Series of Party-Building Efforts

WARWICK, R.I. – The Rhode Island Democratic Party will be hosting its third Party-building workshop for its Women's Caucus on Monday, April 3 at 6:30 PM, at the Central Falls High School on 24 Summer St., in Central Falls. The Women's Caucus is one of a handful of caucuses led by the Party rebuilding itself in the huge public response to the recent presidential election. The Caucus offers education and training to women on community and government activism, and how to get involved in government from a grassroots level from school board to U.S. Senate. It is open to all Rhode Island women and those from neighboring states, and meetings are held monthly in different parts of the state.

The Caucus was reactivated in early January by the Rhode Island Democratic Party and led by co-chairs: Sen. Gayle Goldin, Rep. Lauren Carson, Rep. Shelby Maldonado, and Rep. Teresa Tanzi. Rhode Island's General Officers, members of the Rhode Island General Assembly, city and town chairs and committee members also participate in these sessions.
